Expanding learning and supports for an equitable recovery

This is Afterschool in Alaska

In Alaska, afterschool programs provide expanded learning opportunities to 21,584 students and are a lifeline for working families. In Alaska, 85% of parents report that all young people deserve access to quality afterschool and summer programs. Yet, too many kids in Alaska are being left out. In fact, for every child in an afterschool program, 3 more would participate if a program were available.

Helping young people learn, grow, and thrive

Students in afterschool programs in Alaska are:

- Interacting with peers and building social skills 93%
- Getting homework help 69%
- Taking part in physical activities 86%

A 2020 evaluation of Alaska’s 21st CCLC programs by Education Northwest found that students who participated more regularly in programs saw greater academic and behavioral gains. Teachers surveyed reported that an overwhelming majority of students attending the programs for at least 60 days improved their academic performance (74%), class participation (73%), and class behavior (60%), as well as formed relationships with adults (73%) and worked collaboratively with peers (71%).

Parents in Alaska agree that afterschool programs:

- Provide opportunities to build life skills 83%
- Get kids excited about learning 75%
- Reduce the likelihood that youth will use drugs or engage in other risky behaviors 71%

Call and response: Afterschool programs stepping up during the pandemic

From the outset of the pandemic, afterschool programs have adapted and expanded their services to best meet the needs of the children and families they serve. In Anchorage, Trailside Discovery Camp is welcoming campers for the summer 2021 season. The camp will run outdoors, in-person, with flexible cancellation policies, and of course, adhering to COVID-19 social distancing guidelines by spreading their 250 campers across more locations. In Charlotte, North Carolina, ourBRIDGE for KIDS distributed tens of thousands of meals and served as a liaison between schools and families, translating materials for parents, the majority of whom are English Language Learners.

A 2021 national survey of afterschool providers finds programs continue to provide:

Support is strong and bipartisan

A national survey of parents in the fall of 2020 found that as the pandemic continued to disrupt school schedules, most parents were concerned about their child’s social and emotional well-being and connection to peers, as well as their own ability to continue to provide learning support and/or care for their child as virtual school and distance learning extends into 2021.

Based on the 2020 America After 3PM household survey, parents in Alaska agree that afterschool programs:

- Build positive relationships between children and adults 81%
- Keep kids safe and out of trouble 74%
- Help working parents keep their jobs 81%
- Provide working parents peace of mind 86%

A smart investment

Research spanning several states shows that every $1 invested in afterschool programs saves at least $3 by:

1. Increasing kids’ earning potential
2. Improving kids’ performance at school
3. Reducing crime and juvenile delinquency

Additionally, Community Learning Centers leverage diverse partners to meet community needs. A typical program receives $67,000 from partners to supplement its federal funding. Nationwide, partner contributions totaled more than $1 billion between 2006 and 2010.
