Call and response: Afterschool programs stepping up during the pandemic

From the outset of the pandemic, afterschool programs have adapted and expanded their services to best meet the needs of the children and families they serve. Programs across Tennessee opened safely to provide emergency child care for essential workers, child care for others where possible, and virtual content and engagement where not. Many also opened food distribution sites. The Tennessee Afterschool Network purchased hotspots, devices, and phone cards for programs to distribute to improve connectivity for students, as well as offered Zoom rooms to support youth engagement and even tele-counseling and support groups for families who needed extra help.

A 2021 national survey of afterschool providers finds programs continue to provide:

86% of parents favor public funding of afterschool programs to expand opportunities for kids in underserved communities.

A national survey of parents in the fall of 2020 found that as the pandemic continued to disrupt school schedules, most parents were concerned about their child’s social and emotional well-being and connection to peers, as well as their own ability to continue to provide learning support and/or care for their child as virtual school and distance learning extends into 2021.

Based on the 2020 America After 3PM household survey, parents in Tennessee agree that afterschool programs:

- Build positive relationships between children and adults 77%
- Keep kids safe and out of trouble 73%
- Help working parents keep their jobs 80%
- Provide working parents peace of mind 83%

A smart investment

Research spanning several states shows that every $1 invested in afterschool programs saves at least $3 by:

1. Increasing kids’ earning potential
2. Improving kids’ performance at school
3. Reducing crime and juvenile delinquency

Additionally, Community Learning Centers leverage diverse partners to meet community needs. A typical program receives $67,000 from partners to supplement its federal funding. Nationwide, partner contributions totaled more than $1 billion between 2006 and 2010.

Parents in Tennessee are behind public investment in afterschool programs

The 2020 Department of Education annual performance report of 21st CCLC found that among regular participants:

- Nearly half improved their math (48%) and English grades (48%)
- 69% improved homework completion and class participation
- 62% improved their behavior

A lifeline for working families

21st Century Community Learning Centers (21st CCLC) are local before-school, afterschool, and summer learning programs that serve students attending high-poverty, low-performing schools, engaging students in hands-on learning activities aimed at supporting their academic growth. They provide a variety of enrichment activities to complement school-day learning and offer educational and support services to the families of participating children.

In Tennessee, 21,279 children in 450 communities take part in a Community Learning Center.

21st CCLC grants are the only dedicated federal funding source that support local communities’ afterschool and summer programs.
