Afterschool Alliance Names New Class of Youth Afterschool
Ambassadors for 2021/2022

Youth Ambassadors Will Work to Raise Awareness About Importance and Value of Afterschool Programs

Washington, D.C. -- The Afterschool Alliance announced today the selection of nine students from across the country to serve as Youth Afterschool Ambassadors for 2021/2022. The students were chosen on the basis of their essay and video submissions in a competition held earlier this year.

The nine Youth Ambassadors promote the value of afterschool programs by sharing their experiences in these programs and their views about the role afterschool programs play in their communities. They write for the Afterschool Snack, the Afterschool Alliance blog, about the importance of afterschool programs. The Youth Ambassadors will also connect with members of Congress and their aides as part of the Afterschool for All Challenge next spring.

“We are thrilled about the incredible group of students serving as Youth Afterschool Ambassadors this year,” said Jodi Grant, Afterschool Alliance Executive Director. “They each have powerful personal experience that speaks to the importance of afterschool programs in their lives and the lives of other youth. As the pandemic continues disrupting the lives of so many young people, their schools and communities, it is especially important that we continue to share the benefits these essential programs provide. Afterschool programs keep students safe, inspire them to learn, provide peace of mind to working parents, and also help children re-engage and recover during this difficult time. But too many young people don't have a program available to them. These students will do a terrific job spreading the word about the need for more support for afterschool programs.”

The nine Youth Afterschool Ambassadors in this class come from California, Georgia, Illinois, Maine, Maryland, New York, Utah, Virginia, and Washington. They are:

- Kyla Anderson, from East St. Louis, Illinois' Southern Illinois University Edwardsville East Saint Louis Charter High School's 21st Century Community Learning Centers Afterschool Program, age 17
- Brock Brewer, from Kelso, Washington's Youth And Family Link Afterschool Program, age 16
- Kaiya Jones, from Ellicott City, Maryland's Howard County Library System Teen Advisory Board Afterschool Program, age 15
- Juliana Montell, from Gardiner, Maine's Boys & Girls Clubs of Kennebec Valley Afterschool Program, age 16
- Belen Perez, from Alexandria, Virginia's Community Lodgings Afterschool Program, age 14
- Naomi Porter, from Los Angeles, California's Boys & Girls Club at LA Harbor EntrepreYOUership Afterschool Program , age 16
- Noah Shaw, from Murray, Utah's Miller Family Boys & Girls Club Afterschool Program
- Ramaya Thomas, from Dallas, Georgia's VOXATL Afterschool Program, age 17
- Zhonghui Zheng, from New York, New York's Global Kids Afterschool Program, age 17

The most recent America After 3PM household survey of more than 31,000 families, commissioned by the Afterschool Alliance, finds that for every child in an afterschool program in the United States, three more are waiting to get in. The families of 24.6 million children — more than ever before — are unable to access a program. Many report cost as a barrier. There are significant inequities, with Black and Latinx children unable to access the afterschool programs their parents want for them.

A large and powerful body of evidence demonstrates improvements in grades, school attendance, behavior and more among children who participate in afterschool programs. Researchers have also found that students in afterschool programs are more engaged in school and excited about learning and develop critical work and life skills such as problem solving, teamwork, and communications.
